

How and why to celebrate a Whole Day for Whole Grain

Today, most people only need to try a new whole grain to realize they like it. This means that the best way to increase whole grain consumption is to find ways to help everyone try more whole grains.

That's why Oldways and the Whole Grains Council created a Whole Day for Whole Grain. Held every year on the last Wednesday in March, a Whole Day for Whole Grain is a creative, open-ended celebration unfolding in different ways in thousands of locations at the same time. Our goal is to have people everywhere saying, "That was great! Where have whole grains been all my life?"

We invite you to join us for the next Whole Day for Whole Grain. The benefits to your diners are obvious: they'll learn how delicious and nutritious whole grains are, and they'll reap the many health benefits of whole grain foods. But what are the benefits to you?

Four Great Benefits for Colleges and Universities

- 1. Increase Sales. Whole Day for Whole Grain can drive traffic to your dining halls and cafés. But you have to help us help you out, by planning a whole grain promotion.
- 2. Positive Press. Not everyone can combine delicious with nutritious. Show the world you have what it takes to meet the challenge with tasty whole grain options.
- 3. Improve Health. According to a recent study in the Journal of Nutrition Education and Behavior, college students are more likely to eat whole grains when they understand their benefits.
- 4. Erase the Veto Power. When you make it clear you have something for all different tastes, you'll attract groups of friends.

Participation is Easy

All we ask is that you tell us you're in, and we'll help you do the rest. There are no fees and almost no rules—virtually anything goes, as long as it celebrates whole grains.

We'll brainstorm with you, provide you with support materials, and help you get local and national publicity for your creative promotion of whole grains.

Celebration Ideas for Colleges and Universities

Need ideas for how to participate? A Whole Day for Whole Grain is not a one-size-fits-all operation, so there are great ways for kitchens of all sizes to take part. We are happy to help you at any point in the process, and here are some ideas to get you started:

- Highlight existing whole grain menu items

There's no need to create new menu items—unless you want to. If you've already got delicious dishes on your menu, feature those!

- Use current whole grain favorites to sell something else

If you have an item that sells well, use it to help you promote something new. (i.e., "If you like our Wild Rice Medley, try our NEW Quinoa Salad!")

- Offer promotions

In your à la carte operations, consider offering a free dessert or beverage when a guest purchases a dish with whole grains. Even better if the dessert is whole grain—ask us for ideas!

- Put on a show

If you have the time and space, have a chef conduct a cooking demonstration with samples of a whole grain menu item. You can even provide the recipe as a take-home to try in the dorm kitchen or off-campus.

- Meet and greet with local vendors

If you source any whole grains locally, ask your provider to come in and distribute flyers, samples, or coupons. Everyone wants to meet the baker who provides your delicious breads or the pasta-maker behind that fabulous whole grain fettuccine.

- Make the better choice the first choice

Institute whole grains as "the norm" on your menus, and let customers ask for refined options. A Whole Day for Whole Grain is a great time to start this shift.

A Whole Day for Whole Grain is about reducing barriers, not just offering freebies.

Promotion Tips for Colleges and Universities

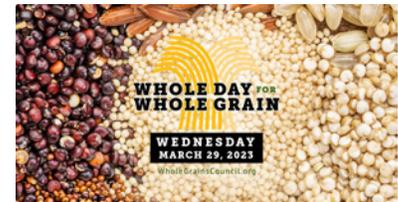

In addition to listing participants on our site, we broadcast to our newsletter subscribers and enlist the help of popular bloggers and other consumer press to get the word out about all our partners' diverse activities. At the same time, we encourage you to promote your celebration too, in ways that only you can:

- Post signs around your dining halls and campus cafés

Start early so students know something special is happening at the end of March. If you print a daily menu, draw special attention to whole grains there. Download our Whole Day for Whole Grain logos to include in your materials.

- Promote on social media

Talk up your plans on your website, Facebook page, or Twitter. You know your diners—take this opportunity to introduce them to something new. Feel free to use our Whole Day for Whole Grain social media graphics, too!

Past Promotion Ideas

For an idea of what has been done in the past, here are just a few whole grain promotion activities from other colleges and universities that could be applied to your event.

Syracuse University promoted a “Daily Grain” and organized a series of tastings under the “Try Me” banner. Together with their marketing efforts, the chefs prepared great dishes like “Cheesy Quinoa Pilaf with Spinach.”

Bon Appetit at Roger Williams University made whole grains standard at every culinary station in both the Upper Commons and Baypoint Café locations.

Sodexo at George Mason University promoted whole grains with a recipe contest and a consumption-and-variety tracking challenge and passed out whole grain samples.

Virginia Tech created posters with the theme “Colonel Grains Wants You for Whole Grain Boot Camp!” They created new whole grain dishes, and invited diners to fill out feedback cards rating the dishes; one diner’s card was picked at random to win a mountain bike.
